THREE NEW BRICK STORES BEING BUILT

Old Wagon Yard Corner to Have Three Handsome Brick Buildings, Two of Them Already Rented. Other Buildings in Grenada. Outlook Very Encouraging.

"Boom, boom booming" is about the way the enthusiast would speak of what is being done in the way of new industries in Grenada County and in the way of buildings in Grenada. The Grenada Auto Co., has under way of construction another large and handsome building fronting on Green Street which gives this concern one of the handsomest and most commodious garages in the State. It already has two splendid buildings one of which fronts on the public square.

Mr. S. S. Roane is having a beautiful modern residence erected on Main Street, besides this there are other residences under way and contracted to soon be erected in Grenada.

A. G. Roane has let the contract to build three handsome brick stores on the old wagon yard lot on the corner of Depot or First and Oak streets. Two of the stores have already been rented and it is understood that a mercantile firm away from Grenada will very probably occupy one of the buildings. The erection of these buildings will add greatly to the looks of that part of the business district and will remove what many have been regarded as a somewhat unsightly spot in that part of the city.

The construction of these buildings shows that good business men have faith in Grenada and it is reassuring to the business spirit of the town and surrounding territory. There is everything, it would seem, that ought to make Grenada a thriving and most prosperous town during the next few years. The people are getting their equilibrium. They are taking an inventory of themselves and their surroundings. They are beginning to realize everywhere that they cannot spend their money and keep it too. The big industries in the way of saw mills have only recently begun here, and it is safe to count on ten years of activity for them. They have a big pay roll and will turn loose lots of money in the County. So it would seem that there is everything to give an encouraging aspect to things in and around Grenada.

GRENADA MOTOR COMPANY CONTEMPLATES BUILDING

If the present plans materialize, the Grenada Motor Co., authorized Ford dealers in this territory, will have one of the handsomest garage structures in this part of the State. Mr. A. J. McCaslin, the proprietor, states that he has in mind a building to front on Main Street just at the rear of the building the concern now occupies, the proposed structure to be 78x104 feet, to be of pressed brick and steel and to have a plate glass front. The new building, when completed, is to be used as a showroom and parts display house and there is no intention of giving up the present quarters which are fast becoming inadequate to meet the growing demands of the business.

Mr. McCaslin is one of Grenada's wizards of finance. He is a sort of Henry Ford himself. There could hardly have been one named more favorably suited to handle the Ford cars in this section than A. J. McCaslin. He "roars to it." He talks but little, yet does a great deal in the way of business. He is public spirited and wideawake and believes in beautifying and having everything that will appeal to the better taste of

LOCATE PLANING MILL IN GRENADA

Another Large Industry To Occupy Site of Old Oil Mill.

A contract has just been closed which means another very important industry for Grenada. A planing mill, which will be one of the largest and most complete enterprises of the kind in Mississippi, is soon to be added to the many other large and important industries of Grenada County. The site has been secured. The lot owned by C. E. Lockett and known as the old oil mill site has been leased and the Lockett Lumber Co., have contracted to remove what it has on the ground there by March 15.

In view of the fact that a great deal of lumber is being manufactured in Grenada County, there could hardly be an industry started here that would fit in better with conditions and that would meet a more general demand.

The industry does not expect to confine itself by any means to local affairs, indeed it will sell its output abroad, that is a great deal of it, and will bring a great deal from other than local markets.

JUDGE MCGOWEN HEARS INJUNCTION

Litigation Involving Estate of Late Milton Miers

Judge J. G. McGowen came down from Water Valley at noon Tuesday to hear the injunction proceedings in a case involving the estate of the late Milton Miers. There were a number of attorneys representing as many different clients interested. Among the interested litigants is Mrs. C. C. Penn. Mrs. Penn had loaned Mr. Miers some money on certain real estate and it seems that there is more than one other party asserting a claim to the land. The Judge heard the arguments and will decide the case after receiving the briefs to be filed.

Judge McGowen went from Grenada to New Orleans where he is a member of a committee named by the Methodist church to consider matters relating to the home for fallen women.

Judge McGowen is not only an upright and just Judge and a good lawyer, but he is a good citizen and always has on his armor for any good work. If the country had more men of his caliber, much less would be heard about "problems."

SERIOUS CASE

"Doctor, I'm positively dying."
"It is not as bad as all that, I hope."
"Yes, it is. I'm positively dying to go to California."

VALHALLA

We are the souls of those who died in battle,
Who suffered much, and toiled, and fought, and bled,
We are a Host of beings now immortal,
We are the Legion of the Silent Dead.

We cannot sleep, or dream in peaceful slumbers,
We cannot rest in deep contentment sweet,
Until we know the task we left unfinished
Has been perfected wholly and complete.

Here in this mystic dwelling place of shadows,
We meet and gaze with wistful pleading eyes
Upon our comrades—those who yet are living
Beneath this boundless region of the skies.

They caught the torch we threw from hands fast falling,
The golden torch aglow with heaven's light,
To them we left the gleam sacred mission
To hold it high, forever burning bright.

But see! The light is growing dim and fainter,
It cannot be they know and do not care,
If we could only tell them of the danger,
And warn them as they stand unheeding there.

The torch! We strive to grasp it, but 'tis useless,
We cannot hold it now—our part is done,
And we can only shout in voiceless whispers
"Fight on! Fight on! The battle is not won!"

We would come back and march again beside them,
But we are pulseless, numb, and without breath,
We stay forever here across the valley,
Held prisoners by the strong firm arms of Death.

And we are weary, weary, of our vigil,
Is it for naught we suffer endless pain?
Until the torch again is lifted flaming,
We cannot rest—for we have died in vain.

LETTER ATTRACTS AMERICAN LEGION WEEKLY

Grenada Girl Writes About Matters That Brings Letter From Editor American Legion Weekly and Also One From Commander. There is Much Food for Serious Thought in What She Writes. Note by Sentinel Editor.
A Beautiful Poem.

The following article written by a young lady of Grenada appeared in the American Legion Weekly of Feb. 2. It was regarded of so much excellence that the national head of the Legion, and several others, wrote her about the letter. The first paragraph is a comment or introduction by the editor of the Legion Weekly:

"Have we changed very much since the war flames died down and we got back into civvies? The Mississippi girl—just a plain American girl—she calls herself—who wrote the letter below thinks that we have—and for the worse. That she has the welfare of the ex-service men and the Legion sincerely at heart no one who reads what she has to say can for a moment doubt. Many will disagree with her emphatically, and the question that she raises will, no doubt, be the cause of numberless heated discussions wherever there are veterans. The letter was received the other day by Commander Owsley on whom it made a deep impression. It has been slightly abridged, and the author's name is withheld. The editors present it without further comment."

"Dear Mr. Owsley: By chance I picked up a copy of The American Legion Weekly the other day, and since reading it have decided to write to you about a matter which has long been on my heart and mind. Namely—why are our boys so different now from what they were when first they came back from Over There? What has happened to them, or what has happened to America, that in these few short years since the war it could have changed them so?"

"When they first came home they were so strong, so clean, clear-eyed, and undeniably splendid, it gave one a thrill of proud possession to watch them as they came, eager, sure and true, and say of them with heads held high in triumph, 'Our boys, our boys.'"

"In time of war they were all that men must need be—brave, loyal, splendid, above reproach. This in time of war. What of them now, in time of peace? Have they lost sight of the ideals for which they fought?"

And if so, why, or rather how, and whose fault is it?

"I watch them every day on the street, in stores, back in college, and the truth has dawned on me with startling force. Something has happened to our boys. Why are they so different now? Some people say, 'It's nothing—only the reaction after the war. It always happens.' But it is something. A very great something, and I do not see why it has to happen. They caught the Vision once—why should they lose it now, so soon? They cannot, they must not! But who is going to keep before them those ideals for which they offered their lives and now seem to hold so lightly?"

"This is not just my own personal narrow view; I have looked at it from all sides, and it is true—other people see it, other people feel it. Look about you and see for yourself. What are the boys doing today, where are they going, who are they with? The same as it was three or four years ago? You know in your heart of hearts it is not. What kind of girls do they prefer to be with? Those who are modest, quiet and serious, the type of girl who during the war followed them across the sea, to the very edge of the firing line that she might help them in their suffering, the kind of girl who thinks first and last and all the time of the welfare of the boys with whom she associates, the girl who is the real pal or the frivolous flapper and jazz queen? The evidence speaks for itself."

"I am not a mother, viewing the world of today with anxious eyes, or a cranky old maid living apart from all the conflict, turmoil and problems of readjustment who 'doesn't know what she is talking about', but a young girl out of college finding herself face to face with startling realities. I am not a pessimist—very much the other way."

"I am glad you have been made National Commander of the Legion, and I have read with much interest your various speeches. I especially noted the one in which you said: 'It is not that this is the end of the war, but the beginning of peace—that is the great significance.' And that is true, it is the greatest significance.

"And now that victory has come, what shall we do with it? It is up to the young people of America. You in your present position will be able to do much."

"I read in the Weekly of December 8th, an extract from a letter in which a correspondent asks, 'Might it not be possible for the Legion to act as mouthpiece for the public?' It is possible, for The American Legion is the public, the most vital, influential part of it anyway, and the voice of the Weekly is far-reaching and its influence unlimited. Why not then use it as a means to keep before the boys the high ideals for which the Legion stands?"

"Why not put in a word about the debt we owe—America's debt to our comrades who are now the Legion of the Silent Dead? Our debt to them has not been fully paid. We caught the torch they threw to us, but its flaming light is flickering—all but gone out. And we hear them say in solemn voice, 'If ye break faith with us who die, we shall not sleep, though we have won in Flanders Field.' A warning, a challenge to be kept before us forever."

"When first the war was over I looked into the faces of the gold-star mothers with anguish and untold suffering in their tearless eyes. I thought of all our nation had spent in tears, blood and money—of all the agony and bitter loss. Then I looked at our boys as they stood tall and straight and strong, the finest army of men the world had ever known, saw the great light upon their faces, thought of the days to come, of a cleaner, purer, happier, more God-like, glorious America, and I said, 'The scales balance, there is a compensation.'"

"But now—I do not know if there is a compensation; it is up to us to say what it shall be. And our debt to the girls of America owe to you—is unpaid. It was for us you fought and suffered. At our feet you laid the trophy. What have we given in return? You gave to us your trust and faith—the sweetest and most priceless gift a man ever gave to a woman—and what have we done with it? For one hold it above all earth's treasures, but there seem to be so many who have thrown it away."

"Is it our fault that the standard has been so lowered and that the ideals for which you fought now seem so vague and far away? How could our boys have forgotten? And yet some of them have. Perhaps it was because the price they paid for defending them was so high, so much pain, so much suffering, they do not want to remember. So they plunge headlong into a state of reckless, careless living, with disregard for life's great principles, and then when life has passed and old age has come there will be things more bitter than wars to remember."

"Oh, I wish we women and girls could bring back and give to them again that Golden Light, which kept them safe and sure and pure while they were away from us; could show

SISSON MAKES BROAD PATRIOTIC SPEECH

Tells Fellow-Members How He Appreciates Their Friendship and Compliments Very Highly Some Leading Republicans. A Commendable Utterance.

On January 16, Hon. T. U. Sisson, in speaking on the bill before Congress making an appropriation for the War department, said some very telling things. Mr. Sisson has been a member of the Appropriations Committee ever since he went to Congress, and has stood out against the extravagances and the waste urged by many war officials who believe in big things for the Army and Navy.

But it is not for the purpose of publishing Mr. Sisson's views on this particular Bill that The Sentinel is printing a part of that speech. It is printing it for the fine spirit it shows and for its breadth of state-manship, and because it shows that Mr. Sisson has grown wonderfully and that he breathes the spirit of a true American in paying tribute to the patriotism of leaders of the Republican party. It is one of the felicitous things of the present day that there are men in the two great parties, although differing widely as to many matters of government, who are fast friends and who are big enough and broad enough to recognize the worth, the ability and the honesty and the integrity of each other. Mr. Sisson said in part:

Mr. Chairman, I expect this will be the last time I shall appear before the House of Representatives in the capacity of a minority Representative on any of the great appropriation bills of the House. I really would like to talk to the House at some length, but my physical condition is such that I do not feel equal to the task. I shall have but little to say about this bill, except to say that the bill taken as a whole meets with my approval.

I want especially to take advantage of this opportunity to express my very deep appreciation of the very keen friendship between myself, and so far as I know, every member of the House of Representatives. (Applause.) I have been here for 14 years, and the sweetest service I have rendered has been the service within the last few months, because the most gratifying hours of a man's life are those in which he knows that his friends appreciate him.

It does not matter how long I may live or where I may be cast upon this earth's strand, there will never be men for whom I will feel closer friendship, there will never be men for whom I will have a higher regard or a deeper affection than for the men with whom I have served in Congress. (Applause.) And, so far as I know, I do not believe there is a Member of Congress who is not my friend. (Applause.)

I am going to make another confession. When I came here I was just as terrific a Democrat as I am now, but I am less of a terrific partisan than I was when I came here. I believe in the principles of Democracy as firmly as I did when I entered the door of the House for the first time, but I have found that men's friendship is not divided by that middle aisle; and thank God it is not. I do not know of a gentleman for whom I have a higher or a tenderer regard than I have for Uncle Joe Cannon of Illinois. (Applause.) We all love him. I have been intimately associated with him on the committee. He is a great benefactor

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 18

JESUS AND ZACCHAEUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost—Luke 19:10.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Prov. 1:3-15; Matt. 9:9-13; Luke 18:1-13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Having Jesus for a Visitor.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in the Home of Zacchaeus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Saved an Extortioner.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Standards in Business.

I. Jesus Passing Through Jericho (v. 1).

Jericho is noted as the stronghold of the Canaanites, which was miraculously delivered into the hands of Israel in response to their faith (Josh. 6), and also for the faith of Rahab, which saved her from destruction with the city (Heb. 11:30, 31).

II. Zacchaeus Seeking Jesus (vv. 2-4).

1. His Object (v. 3). He sought to see who Jesus was. Though perhaps prompted by curiosity he eagerly sought Jesus. He doubtless had heard of Jesus' kind treatment of publicans, so was prompted to see what kind of a man He was.

2. His Difficulties (vv. 2, 3). (1) His infamous business (v. 2). He was a tax collector of the Roman government. The very fact that a Jew held such an office under the hated Romans would make him extremely unpopular. Then since he was rich it was evident that he had practiced extortion in collecting the taxes. (2) His shortness of stature (v. 3). He was too small to crowd his way through to Jesus, and being hated by the people they thrust him aside, no doubt with taunts and jeers. (3) His persistence (v. 4). He ran before the multitude and climbed up into a tree. What he lacked in stature he made up by the height of the tree. Obstacles placed before him he brushed aside and those he could not brush aside he climbed over, because he had set his heart upon the goal. Though Zacchaeus' legs were too short to enable him to see Jesus they were long enough to run past the crowd and enable him to climb the tree. It was somewhat undignified for this rich man to climb the tree, but his soul was so desirous to see Jesus that he cast his pride to the winds.

III. Jesus Finding Zacchaeus (vv. 5, 6).

While Zacchaeus was trying to see Jesus, Jesus was looking for him. This is always the case. When Jesus saw him he commanded him to come down from the tree and declared his intention to go home with him. Zacchaeus got more than he expected. Jesus did not utter a word which would humiliate Zacchaeus. Jesus knew his heart's desire and dealt accordingly with him. All souls who earnestly seek Jesus shall be found of Him. How wonderful His grace, that regardless of one's past life, that Jesus will receive him as a friend and enter into fellowship with him. Zacchaeus quickly responded. He came down and with joy received Jesus.

IV. Zacchaeus' Conversion (vv. 7-10).

His conversion was sudden and thorough. He was converted before he had reached the ground. It does not take Jesus long to save a soul. 1. What the Crowd Said (v. 7). They said just what they say today when sinners come to Christ. They called to mind the man's former sins. They also reproached Christ, saying that he had come to be a guest of this notorious extortioner, the tax collector. His supreme mission was to save sinners (v. 10). Jesus came not to condemn us, but to save us; not to shame and destroy us, but to save from sin and reconcile us to God our Father.

2. What Zacchaeus Said (v. 8). His conversion was thorough. It took hold upon his heart. His new life was begun with resolution and restitution. He dedicated the half of his goods to the poor. His conversion got hold of his pocketbook. His determination to make restitution wherein he had wrongly exacted taxes shows the genuineness of his conversion. While God forgets the past of a sinner when he comes to Christ, the sinner who is converted will seek to make right all wrongs, be they unkind words or unrighteous deeds.

3. What Jesus Said (vv. 9, 10). "Today is salvation come to thy house." The publican was now a child of God, a son of Abraham. Salvation is a present reality when one receives Christ.

Few Good Lies. As universal a practice as lying is, and as easy a one as it seems, I do not remember to have heard three good lies in all my conversation.—Swift.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

By W. F. Bond, Superintendent
Every school in the state should observe Arbor Day some time during the month of February. Trees shrubs, flowers and vines should be planted on the school property, so as to beautify and shade the grounds as much as possible. Before or after the actual planting of the trees, there should be held in the school building a short program consisting of songs by the children, and short talks by the teachers, students and visitors, on the value of trees in general and the good that comes from making our surroundings beautiful. Trees may be planted in honor of some citizen who in the past did some great service for the community, or in memory of some soldier boy who gave his all in the late war.

JONES' WHOPPER

"That fellow Jones is the worst liar I ever met."
"What now?"

"He says he took his car to the garage man and the fellow found there wasn't much the matter with it and actually fixed it—fixed it, mind you—and didn't charge him a cent for the trouble."

The Nonchalant Aviator.

"Are you hurt?" asked the excited farmer, as he rushed up to an aviator whose plane had been wrecked in his corn field.

"No."

"Then what are you swearing about?"

"I've just discovered that I'm out of cigarettes."

His Daily Diet.

Judge—You're accused of stealing some swords and fencing foils from a pawnshop—and you'll probably tell me you did it because you were hungry.

The Accused—Yes, your honor! I'm the sword swallower at the circus!

Near Tragedy.

Voice (in darkness)—Rastus, you black rascal, get out of that chicken coop. I've got a shotgun aimed at you.

Voice From Chicken Coop—Fo' de Lawd's sake, colonel, don't shoot! You might kill a chicken!—American Mutual Magazine.

Testing It.

"Young man," said the boss, impressively, "what you want to learn is that perseverance wins, perseverance, sticking everlastingly at it!"

"Yes, sir," said the youth. "That's what you told me the last time, and I'm here again the way you said it, asking for that raise!"

Sparing His Feelings.

"I want a word of advice."
"Well?" replied Mr. Wadleigh, grimly.

"What is the best way to approach you for a loan?"

"If you're sensitive, you had better write for it, and when you get my reply tear it up without reading it."

TEMPORARY INCREASE

"Did you gain in weight during your hunting trip?"
"Only temporarily. I went back as soon as the doctor removed the shot."

No Fair Exchange.

When our farmers take positions, voicing statesmanlike alarm,
We hope our politicians
Will not have to run the farm.

The Feeling Was Mutual.

Beany—That fellow Wilkins is just crazy about you. He told me that he was starving for love.

Jenny—Yes, both of us are. He hasn't taken me out to dinner once in the last year.

Off Duty.

"Who is that fellow trying to start a bally automobile and swearing in a manner shocking to hear?"
"Pass on and don't embarrass the poor devil. He's the president of our local 'Optimist' club."

No Trouble to Listen.

Father—Now, my son, I'm going to give you some good advice and some day you'll wish you had taken it.
Son—Fire away, dad, since from your own words you don't expect me to take it.

He Knew the Feeling.

Binks—I see where a famous scientist says that the world is coming to an end.

Jinx—Yes, that's about the way I felt after the poker game last Saturday night.

Very Different.

"Jim talks too much about himself."
"He claims that that is the way to make others talk about you."

"Yes, but they won't say the same things that you do."

Uncongenial.

Miss Gush (to popular novelist)—I suppose you just live with your characters.
Novelist—Oh, dear, no. They're rather an unpleasant lot.

ANNUAL LIVE STOCK REPORT FOR MISSISSIPPI

The livestock industry in Mississippi is practically at a standstill, according to the report of D. A. McCandless, statistician in this state for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This is due to the prevailing low prices of stock of all kinds. The fact that the present numbers and values of live stock are not materially less than last year, however, may be an indication that the slump has about reached its lowest point, and that the coming year may see some recovery.

The number of horses in the state is practically the same as last year; the price is beginning to rise a little, however, so that their aggregate value is about a half-million dollars more than a year ago.

The number of mules has increased a little—some 6,000 more than this last year. This is an encouraging indication, as every increase in mule power means more acres in cultivation.

The number of milk cows has remained substantially the same as last year, but their value has decreased. The average price per head is the lowest since 1912, when the average price was $26.00.

The number of other cattle has also remained about stationary, while their value is lower than a year ago. The average price per head is the lowest since 1910; at that time the price was down to $8.40.

Sheep also show a slump in value, although the total number in the state is the same as in January 1922. The price per head is about the same that it was in 1916.

An increase is shown in the number of swine, though the price remained stationary. This causes slight increase in their aggregate value.

Not since 1915 has the price of swine been so low as it has been for the past two years; in that year it went down to $7.20 per head.

CORPORATIONS DECLARE BIG DIVIDENDS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—In a list compiled by the Federal Trade Commission of 228 corporations which during 1922 declared stock dividends aggregating $2,149,151.425, about a hundred are among the concerns that are the largest and most direct beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber tariff law. Practically every consumers' commodity—food, clothing, medicines, machinery, utensils, furniture and equipment—is represented in the products of the corporations which have been accumulating surplus profits while farmers, small business men, wage workers, and others have been feeling the effects of the Republican panic.

The seven principal Standard Oil companies have released surpluses of $906,324,311 as stock dividends, and subsidiaries of Standard Oil have done proportionately well. The makers of sewing machines, for whose products the Fordney-McCumber act imposed a tax of from 25 to 40 per cent upon the women of the country, set aside an aggregate of $32,050,000, of which $30,000,000 was earned by the Singer Company.

Hundreds of millions in stock dividends were divided among the stockholders of corporations engaged in the manufacture of cotton and woolen textiles. The makers of metal wares, drugs and chemicals, electrical apparatus and supplies, paper, and machinery also testified to a reign of prosperity by authorizing many millions of stock dividends.

The duty of 11 cents a hundred-weight levied on salt by the Fordney-McCumber law doesn't appear to have been necessary to the financial success of the salt producers. Two salt concerns declared a stock dividend of $1,000,000 each. Four sugar refineries turned surpluses of $65,000,000 into stock dividends.

William Wrigley, Jr., head of what is generally regarded as the Chewy Gum Trust, is a big contributor to Republican campaign funds and a powerful influence in the councils of the Republican party. He was one of the individuals who benefitted largely from the repeal of the excess profits taxes and nuisance taxes and the reduction of the higher surtaxes on incomes. William Wrigley, Jr., & Co., had a surplus of $1,362,500, which it released as stock dividends. By distributing these huge surpluses as stock dividends the corporations escape taxation upon their surplus earnings.

THE FUTILITY OF WAR

The World Peace foundation figures out that Uncle Sam since the end of the Revolutionary war has spent $52,607,489,927 on war. That is about $500 for every one now living in the United States. Wars that consumed this huge sum settled nothing that could not have been settled peacefully.

THE STATISTICAL POSITION OF STAPLE COTTON

Editor Cotton and Cotton, Oil News: Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 3.—So much has been said regarding the statistical position with regard to Upland cotton that we think it only fair to the manufacturers of fine goods to give some correct statistics with regard to the production, distribution and present stock of staple cotton in the Mississippi Delta for the season 1922-23:

Total production and Carry-over in the entire Mississippi Delta, 558,112 bales.

Total shipments from August 31, 1922 to January 31, 1923, inclusive, 329,718 bales.

Net stock February 1st, 228,394 bales.

Sold and awaiting shipment (conservative estimate based on Association sales for deferred shipment), 60,000 bales.

Leaving a net unsold stock in the Mississippi Delta of 168,394 bales.

The foregoing figures show that 339,718 bales of the staple crop available in the Mississippi Delta have been sold during the first five months of the season and there remains but 168,394 bales to supply the trade for the next seven months.

Let us ask the question: Is the statistical position with regard to Upland cotton any stronger than the statistical position of staple cotton?

Very truly yours,
W. M. Garrard,
General Manager.

DON'T LET THE "FLU" COME BACK

In view of the fact that many of our friends are coughing and sneezing, let us not forget the lessons learned from our earlier influenza epidemic. One thing they taught us in particular was the danger of the careless cough and sneeze. The best insurance against disease is to protect ourselves from the nose and throat discharge of other people. This is not only for influenza but will also prevent numerous other respiratory diseases. Let us recall the precautions of the surgeon general for the protection of the individual and thus the community:

1. Avoid needless crowding. Influenza is a crowd disease.

2. Smother your coughs and sneezes. Others do not want the germs you throw away.

3. Your nose, not your mouth, was made to breathe through. Get the habit.

4. Remember the three C's: a clean mouth, clean skin, and clean clothes.

5. Try to keep cool when you walk and warm when you ride or sleep.

6. Open the windows always at home at night; at the office when practicable.

7. Your fate may be in your own hands. Wash them before eating.

8. Don't let the waste products of digestion accumulate. Drink a glass of water on getting up.

9. Don't use a napkin, towel, spoon, fork, glass, or cup which has been used by any other person and not washed.

10. Avoid tight clothes, tight shoes, tight gloves. Seek to make nature your ally, not your prisoner.

11. When the air is pure, breathe all of it you can; breathe deeply.

Remember this too: If you have had influenza, look out for bad after-effects. Tuberculosis frequently follows the disease. The thing to do is to have a thorough medical examination as soon as you have thoroughly recovered, and particularly if you feel "run down" and do not "come back" with your usual "pep."—Oakland Tribune.

FROM THE EXTENSION DEPARTMENT, MISSISSIPPI TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM

The Mississippi Tuberculosis Sanatorium is a direct result of an unselfish and humanitarian desire to check the ravages of tuberculosis among our people and the few men and women who fought for the Institution now worth $1,500,000 have seen their dreams come true. They have seen it rise from a small experiment to a mighty factor in the cure and control of tuberculosis and its value has been clearly proven through the decided decrease in cases and deaths.

Cemeteries in Mississippi had become too crowded with deaths from tuberculosis and the progressive physicians of the State during the 1914 session of the Mississippi Medical Association introduced a resolution to have each county build a small sanatorium. This failed of advancement because of the trouble in securing specialists who would take charge, the lack of sentiment and money, and from the fact that county sanatoria in Illinois were unsuccessful. A final decision to centralize the work was agreed upon and the campaign began.

Over 3,000 examinations are made each year by the Sanatorium physicians who are specialists on tuberculosis. Any citizen of Mississippi may be examined without charge if he will write, phone or wire for a date. This relieves congestion.

To the people and newspapers who mix up the spelling and pronunciation of "Sanatorium" this suggestion is offered:

Sanatorium and Sanitarium are not synonymous. Sanatorium is derived from the Latin "sanatorius", meaning health-giving. Sanitarium from "sanitus" or "sanus", meaning whole or sound. A sanitarium is the place where conditions are preservative of health as distinguished from one where curative agencies are employed. Hence it is the province of the SANATORIUM to preserve health and the SANATORIUM to restore it. The contractors and others connected with the Sanatorium are using every means possible to open the doors of hope and health to the 1,500 applicants who are urgently begging for admission. All cannot be cared for at the same time but it means a shorter wait and a happier ride over the road to health. The exact date of opening will be announced later in The Grenada Sentinel.

J. T. THOMAS WOULD MEET THE CONDITIONS

There is little or no interest in the race for Governor. The candidate are jockeying at the post. No one seems ready to back any one of them for the winner. There is a deal of speculation as to why this apathy, this lack of interest. Many interpret it as showing that there is a well grounded sentiment that the man who would fit the place and meet the trying conditions of the present hour is not a candidate.

J. T. Thomas would meet the conditions. Some months ago we suggested his name, and there was the most remarkable response to our suggestion. Many and many times over we are asked the question, "Is there no way to get Mr. Thomas to make the race for Governor, we'll elect him?" Our answer has been that Mr. Thomas has looked on at too many political campaigns in Mississippi not to feel a certain sort of trepidation at the thought of running.

We imagine, too, that the runts of the past eight years and the general trend of politics have not failed to create the impression that many people suffer themselves to have a certain sort of fear of a man who has done anything for himself or who has accomplished anything in a business way. Too much has it appeared that the man who could rant the loudest, promise the most and perform the least, was the man who was given preferment. The man who has been in the habit of keeping his promises and who regards a promise made about politics or the obligations of office just as sacred and just as binding as any other promise, and who does not seek to fool the public or to play fast and loose with the public mind, finds it quite difficult oftentimes to deal with the stump performer and the promise dodger.

But Mississippi is paying the penalty of honoring these sort of men in high taxes, high assessments, useless offices and a dissatisfied citizenship and frightened away capital.

The State of Mississippi owes $16,000,000 in bonds or approximately $8. apiece for every man, woman and child in the State. Then in addition to that comes nearly $100,000,000 in bonds which the different counties owe, or about $50. apiece for every man, woman and child in the State, all of which has largely been brought about by the hoodwinkers and swash-bucklers in politics. The people are realizing that the time has come to halt and they are revolving over and over in their minds whether or not they should not make some radical changes in the character and the standards of their public officials. The people are wondering if it would not be a good idea to place a sure enough business man in the Governor's office.

If there was ever a time when the State needed a cool, calculating business mind to direct its affairs that time is now. Theorists and campaign performers need to be told to take a back seat.

We do not know, but we imagine that if J. T. Thomas knew that a representative number of Mississippi's best men would unitedly demand his candidacy and then get in and help to present the issues his candidacy would represent to the people of the State, he would run. He is a busy man, but he is full of human sympathy and is doing his best to make men and women happier and better. He is sincerely imbued with a desire to contribute what he can towards bettering the world and to make it easier for men and women to enjoy the full fruits of their labors.

With J. T. Thomas in the Governor's office, Mississippi would take higher ground and the dawn of a new and better day would be ushered in.

OUR "POWDERED BARRISTER"

We see from the daily press that our "powdered barrister" friend, Judge L. M. Burch of Jackson, wants to be state attorney general. It is an honorable ambition. We almost wish it were so that we could support Judge Burch. We have never taken him too seriously, and perhaps if he had taken himself less seriously he would not find himself today, mid-stream, politically, with the bridges cut off behind and no boat in front. But as is usual with those who err he has no one but himself to blame.

In the most friendly way, we chided him for aiding in outraging the State by doing his mite towards foisting upon the Mississippi public the present official runt and hermaphrodite breeder of political scandal who happens to occupy the Governor's office.

But Burch did not stop there. Last year he was out doing what little he could to stir up strife and to help elect a man to the United States Senate who had discredited his state, blackened the name of the Democratic party, and consorted with the enemies of his own country when it was at war and when the sons of America were being shot down on the battle fields. His campaign speeches were full of sounding brass, yet were as violent as he knew how to make them. He chose his political company, a thing he had a right to do, but one of which he should repent and make a confession before expecting honors from the untimely Democrats of Mississippi.

Personally we like Burch. We are sorry that he has placed himself where he has. We gave him the warning but it fell on deaf ears. If we did not feel that our advice would be like water on a duck's back, we would admonish him to go way back and sit down. One of the chief seats is not due him. When he experiences a change of heart akin to what Paul did when he was on the way to Damascus to persecute the saints, we shall be glad to introduce him to better political company than he has been keeping the past few years.

It may be that the Judge is ready to make a confession now?

FRANKLIN OFFERS AS THE GOAT

Russell and his associates have placed a postage stamp on L. C. Franklin and started him out to campaign for Governor. Franklin, we believe, is an inherently honest fellow and we also believe his intentions are good, but his political associations show that his conscience is a bit too plastic for the needs of the people in the Governor's office. Birkhead suits, Goldsby pardons and text book adoptions are an ever present reminder to the people to be careful. No man can make the landing for Governor of Mississippi when it is known that Russell is backing him. When Franklin begins to ripen, maybe he will know better than he knows now about many things, and alas will he learn that playing the goat is a bad pastime.

It may be that that political crowd must have somebody for the goat, and that rather than let it go to pieces entirely, Franklin has consented to be that animal. He, perhaps, feels as the Irishman did, who during the Civil War, was a member of a company to whom a very earnest divine was delivering a telling appeal. The minister was using as a text the Scriptural statement about the sheep being separated from the goats at the last day, and had repeated most fervently and effectively the inquiry, "Who will be the goat? Who will be the goat?" Whereupon, Mike, thinking that somebody was due to respond, arose and addressed the minister, thus, "Well parson rather than break up ther meeting, I'll be the goat." Franklin is perhaps playing the part the Irishman thought was necessary.

WHY NOT A LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY?

We see from the news items sent out from Jackson that Gov. Russell's private secretary, Macey Dinkins, has been sending out a request for the "beneficiaries" of Russell's administration—and by "beneficiary" there can be no other meaning than that the said party has been placed at the counter where he can share in the money paid in by the taxpayers—to chip in to aid his excellency in paying for his experiences with Miss Birkhead. Nobody but a Lee Russell would have permitted such a thing. The next legislature ought to have an investigation to see who came across to aid the Governor in paying for whatever pleasures he got out of playing fast and loose with this red headed stenographer.

We asserted some months ago that we had good grounds to believe that the penitentiary employes have been tapped for this purpose, and there is nearly one hundred of them.

This is one of the worst precedents that could be set. It is in line with what we have so many, many times condemned in the Republican party for bleeding post office employes and others on the government pay roll to chip in for campaign expenses. The more light that falls on many of the present doings in the politics of Mississippi, the more filth is there found.

The next legislature should name a committee as soon as it convenes to see who made a barter with Russell in this disgraceful affair.

PASS CANDIDATE UP FOR FOOL

Under this head about every agency in the state has replied "nothing." Parties who make such a statement convict themselves of profound ignorance expressed publicly or are numbered among those who "Spin not, etc," but who are on the state and county payrolls and do not want to be disturbed. We want some of these birds to explain the following statement by the Federal Census department for 1922: Horses in Mississippi in 1920 (the year of the slump) were valued at 24 million dollars, today they are worth 15 million dollars. Mules were 47 million dollars, today they are worth 28 million dollars; milk cows were worth 32 million dollars, today they are worth 14 million dollars; other cattle were worth 16 million dollars, today they are worth 6 million dollars; sheep were worth 1 million dollars, today they are worth 300 thousand; hogs were worth 19 million dollars, today they are worth 19 million dollars. Remember this is a drop from 1920—not 1919 when things were high. Now when some guy comes around running for governor and tells you there is nothing the matter with Mississippi you put him in the fool class and look elsewhere for your man. We want a governor who knows there is something wrong and will try to remedy it—not one who will close his eyes and let present organizations continue to bleed this state white.—Senatobia Democrat.

WHAT GREAT BRITAIN OWES

The debt the Allies owe the United States for money loaned during the World War amounts, in round figures, to $120 a piece for every man, woman and child in the United States. The figures given for what Great Britain owes is $4,700,000,000. President Harding's Debt Funding Commission, made up wholly of Republicans, now propose to cut the interest rate of this debt from 5 per cent to 3 per cent for the first 10 years. It was understood when the loan was made that the interest rate was to be cut to what this government had to pay for the money it borrowed to loan that country. The rate the United States is paying is 4¼ per cent. Four and one quarter per cent would make the annual interest $199,750,000. We see it stated that after 10 years, the annual interest at 3½ per cent would be $164,500,000. This would mean that we would collect from Great Britain $35,250,000 less than the United States is paying for the money. This is not right, and while we are always for England next to Uncle Sam, we cannot see the reason for "rehabilitation" and "stabilizing" that far. We are paying for all the "stabilizing". In truth the international banking interests are doing their best to create a sentiment to cancel all the debts. This would be a good thing for them but not much for the great body of the people who are struggling under the load of heavy taxes.

SUNFLOWER TOCSIN "HITS THE TRAIL"

Legislators should be elected at the coming election who will work to reduce taxation even if all public work should cease for a time. The present tax-paying hold-up our people have been through has made them all willing to endure anything that will reduce their taxes.—Sunflower Tocsin.

Right you are, brother. The statement that you "will cripple our institutions to cut down their appropriations" is as sounding as brass. Oo paraphrase a Biblical statement, it is better that a few institutions be "crippled" than for the whole State to be placed on the auction block, for that is what the present trend of spending of public money means. We challenge the statement that any of them will be "crippled" by a reasonable reduction in appropriations. A few enterprises or a few institutions cannot permanently thrive when mortgages and bonds are piling up on the property and the energy of those who make the institutions possible. Are the institutions or enterprises to be placed on a pedestal above the people for whom they are made?

SULLENS AND JOHNSON TO BE CONGRATULATED

We congratulate Fred Sullens, the brilliant and able editor of the Jackson Daily News and the astute business manager of that paper, Walter Johnson, on the installation of a duplex tubular newspaper press which is capable of printing 30,000 copies of the paper per hour. The Daily News is a great newspaper. We are glad to commend the editor and the management at any time, and we heartily joy with them in their last achievement.

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania expresses himself as being doubtful about the effect of the Rockefeller and Carnegie "foundations" on the teachers of the country. Teachers, he thinks, may be unduly influenced by the use of the millions from these funds and be inclined to teach what is regarded as pleasing those handling these immense funds. There is a danger at this point. Certain it is that nobody ever heard of "units," as used at college and universities today, until these "foundations" came into being. Then, too, we are inclined to believe that the idea of "A. grade" colleges and high school was born in the mind of some "foundation" zealot.

The Monday Morning Leader has again appeared in Jackson. C. O. Japp is the editor. Japp is a most deserving young man and is to be highly commended for his success thus far. We doubt, however, very seriously whether there is a place for the Monday Morning Leader in Jackson.

Mrs. Carter Expresses Unbounded Gratitude

Arkansas Woman Comes Out With Unqualified Endorsement of Woman's Treatment, Stella Vitae.

"For a long time I suffered from ovarian trouble and other female disorders, and had almost despaired of finding anything that would straighten me out," said Mrs. W. G. Carter, R. F. D. No. 1, Cabot, Ark.

"It's a terrible thing to have your hopes built up on something some friend has recommended only to be disappointed in the end. Well I've been through that many a time and it was not till I got hold of Stella Vitae that my hopes were at last realized.

"I had all those symptoms you hear about, headaches, aching back and limbs, stomach out of order and inward pains. My nerves were shattered and I lost a good deal of sleep at night. I would have dizzy spells, too, and would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling. Really, I can't believe there ever was a greater sufferer than I was.

"I got hold of Stella Vitae way back in 1919 and have kept it by me ever since. I am thankful I read about it in the paper and was moved to try it and I am always telling my friends to get a bottle and try it."

Stella Vitae is Nature's own gift to suffering women, with the exceptional qualities for relieving female disorders brought to the highest state of efficiency by scientific development. Nor is it strange that Stella Vitae is beneficial in so many diseases of women, for these numerous troubles are all traced to one cause. And that is why woman is so much more a sufferer than man and that is why countless women suffer from the same troubles throughout their lives.

Note—Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and is sold upon the positive guarantee that if it does not bring relief the purchase price will be refunded. Druggists are supplied from the Van Fleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn., Distributors.—Adv.

KEEP PRESENT ACREAGE IN "MONEY CROPS".

When the South does this, it will become a permanently prosperous section—and not before. At present we are not cultivating sufficient acreage per farm; and what we are cultivating we are largely cultivating with the most expensive agency of production known to man—human strength. Just in proof of these facts, let us take the acreage per farm in the seven states usually grouped together as the West North Central States and compare their acreage per farm and the acreages of improved and unimproved land in each state with similar figures for our twelve Southern states. Here are the figures:

	Number of farms	Number acres improved lands	Number unimproved acres including woodland	Average number improved acres per farm
West North Central States:

BUILDING AT STATE SANATORIUM BEST EQUIPPED OF ANY IN COUNTRY

The White Infirmary, five stories high including basement, 534 feet long, 30 feet wide with a central wing 42 by 45, capacity 300 patients, is the largest building of the Mississippi Tuberculosis Sanatorium and is the most modern built and equipped of any Sanatorium in the United States.

This building contains 120 double rooms for patients, 58 porches, 60 bath rooms with showers, six rooms for medical staff, a contagious ward where patients will be tested for diseases other than tuberculosis, two electric elevators, two diet kitchens, incinerators, chart rooms, sterilizing rooms and linen closets on each floor, four examination rooms and two rooms in bookkeeping department.

On the fourth floor is the Solarium, or sun parlor and a red tile promenade surrounded by a brick and stone parapet. This part of the building will be used for bone tuberculosis, sun baths and ultra-violet rays, accommodating about 60 patients. Exercise patients will also use this before going out to meals in the main dining room.

The basement, running entire length of Infirmary with plenty windows for light and air, will contain, besides numerous supply rooms, a barber shop, X-ray, vault, laboratory, drug rooms and rooms for vocational training.

The Infirmary is absolutely fire-proof and only the doors and window frames are wood. Floors are covered with green linoleum and all bath, chart, incinerator and sterilizing rooms are in white tile. Disappearing windows keep fresh air circulating from either side and triple-checking call lights are above every door.

Besides the miles of wire and piping it contains 1,500 openings, 1,800 cubic feet of stone, 3,500 cubic yards of concrete, 24,000 square yards of plastering, 425,000 pounds of steel reinforcement and 900,000 brick.

SOME THINGS THE SOUTH'S MEN HAVE DONE

A few days ago we had occasion to chronicle the death of Prof. E. E. Barnard, the noted astronomer, who was a native of Tennessee, and at his death astronomer in charge of Yerkes Observatory. In that article we were happy to call attention to the fact that he was from the South, and in thinking on this we were reminded of how many great men the South has produced and among the great how many of them were first in their line or in making wonderful discoveries.

In an article that must necessarily be brief we cannot call attention to every name on the list. In fact we can mention but a few of them, with the hope that it will stimulate thought among our readers and perhaps investigation.

Of course we are all agreed that Washington was the greatest American that has ever lived, and that Robert E. Lee was America's greatest general. There are few who will dispute the claim that Admiral Farragut, born and reared at Knoxville, Tennessee, was our greatest sea fighter. In literature Edgar Allan Poe of Virginia among unbiased judges is rated as the most talented man of letters America has produced.

In oratory there has been no equal of Patrick Henry, and in statesmanship and versatility of genius Thos. Jefferson heads the list. There has been no man in our long history that matches intrepid Andy Jackson, patron saint of every proud and passionate Tennessean. And what judge equals John Marshall?

These the very great. Did you know that a modest Mississippian discovered the x-rays and demonstrated them to his class in physics at Vanderbilt university long before Crookes, the Englishman, or Roentgen, the German, made known their discoveries? This was the great Langdon C. Garland, former chancellor of the University of Mississippi and long chancellor of Vanderbilt.

Did you know that the first submarine was invented by a southerner? This was at Charleston, S. C., during the civil war. Look up the record for yourself. You will find that it was a success in principle but failed because the principle was not properly applied.

Did you know that "Dixie" was written in the South and the music for it composed by Prof. Arnold of Montgomery, Alabama, before the civil war?

Did you know that the first abolitionist in America was a native of Tennessee? Elihu Embree, grand uncle of the late Bishop-Elijah Embree Hoss, was his name, and he conducted a paper that was about the most vigorously edited thing of its kind in history. His press was burned and he was maltreated, but he never got in history.

Did you know that the decisive battle of the Revolution was fought at King's Mountain, N. C., and won by Tennesseans and North Carolinians who by their tremendous victory turned the tide in favor of the Colonists and made the American republic possible? Look up your history. Bancroft, the historian of the Revolution, tells the story in his early editions but may have expunged it from his later editions after he became such a hater of the South.

Every state in the South has contributed some man or some first thing to the glorious record made by America. The list is so long that it would take columns to print it. To us it is our proudest heritage. Why should not some historian make up the record and embed it in a volume so that it might be accessible to our children and to future generations?—New Orleans States.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS OPPOSES EDUCATIONAL BILL

Is Quoted Most Approvingly By New Orleans States. The German Idea.

It will not be disputed that John Sharp Williams is an informed man. Few will deny that he is a wise man. He never "shoots his mouth off" or talks to hear his voice rattle or roar. There is no man in the United States Senate who is more feared in debate because of his knowledge of facts, than the brilliant senator from Mississippi. We take him as a witness and put him on the stand. Hear what he has to say about uniform education in the United States.

"I would hate to see the educational institutions of this country federalized or made 'uniform' all over the country. I saw enough of that sort of thing, teaching every child the same thing every morning throughout a whole country when I was in Germany. One of the good things with us is that each state uses different text books, and all children's minds are not framed in the same mold.

A Yankee remains a Yankee, a Westerner a Westerner, and a Southerner a Southerner, and the difference in their traditions and ideals and mode of education and training has been of invaluable benefit to the republic."

John Sharp was educated in Germany and was a classmate of the ex-kaiser. He knows the German system of education from a to z, and what he says about it is the truth, as is attested by hundreds and hundreds of people who have investigated it. Do we want that sort of a system foisted upon our children and their children?

There is no doubt that the German Kultur, which is another name for Germany's system of education, was one of the leading and inspiring causes of the great war. It led the German people away from God. It created in their minds the false idea of a superman, which was another name for a German. Their scholars even went so far as not to only create a German religion but a German God. It is written in their books that the Germans were great enough to establish their own religion, and that Christ was not a Jew but a German. They made Him so.

This country is getting desperately tired of bureaucracy. If you don't think we are saddled with that system, ask some informed man who knows what is going on at Washington. Our public schools are the bulwark of our freedom. They should not be brought under the blighting influence of the bureaucrats.—New Orleans States.

"Opportunity Knocks But Once"

Is Taking out a Life Policy a Matter of Business Or One of Sentiment?

Do you not figure on the cost when you go to buy Bonds, a Farm, a suit of Clothes or anything else? Then why not exercise the same business judgement about taking Life Insurance? Safety, age and the character of the Company counts for much in taking out Life Insurance. The Aetna Life Insurance Co., began business in 1850 or 72 years ago.

We insure from 16 to 70. The Company has recently reduced rates on many important forms. As an illustration, we quote a few rates below on Term, Ordinary Life, 10, 15 and 20 Pay Life contracts, also 20 Year Endowment.

Age	One Year Term	7 Year Term	Ordinary Life	10 Pay Life	15 Pay Life	20 Pay Life	20 Year En'd
16	7.79	9.20	12.43	32.26	23.69	19.51	39.95
20	7.94	9.39	13.48	34.23	25.15	20.72	40.08
25	8.22	9.77	15.10	37.13	27.31	22.53	40.26

50	14.79	19.88	36.43	66.20	50.14	42.86	49.17
55		28.68	46.32	76.16	58.81	51.35	55.23
60			59.15	87.89	69.75	62.59	64.42
65			80.50	106.40
70			114.10	131.70

We also write an improved Disability clause, which pays for partial disability, also Double Indemnity clause. Policy doubles in event of death by accident.

The Aetna is the largest Company in the world writing both participating and non-participating business, and we are in a position to give you 100 per cent service.

Think it over and give us an opportunity to prove these statements. Let us protect you against old age, let us aid you in caring for your family when perhaps you are unable to care for them or when you have passed away. The Aetna will protect you against accident.

Do not hesitate because it costs so little, in truth, many insurance policies cost too much. We are only enabled to make this extra ordinary offer because of some special arrangements we have made.

Some of the largest daily newspapers in the United States, more than 200 of them in all, are offering this same insurance policy contract to their readers. Among the newspapers it might be mentioned that President Harding's paper, the Marion Star, at Marion, Ohio; The Washington City Herald; The Times Journal and scores upon scores of other newspapers.

Knowing that there is nothing too good for Sentinel readers, we made an investigation and got the privilege of selling these policies to our readers.

No such opportunity was ever before offered as this Reader Insurance Policy. It is a bonafide travel and accident policy put out by an Old Line Insurance Company.

While doing a real, a genuine, service for our readers, we make it easier for one to pay his or her subscription.

The cost is just a little over 1-4 of one cent a day--just think of it. Who would not be willing to double this small amount tomorrow morning as a guarantee against accidents?

DON'T DELAY. TIME IS TOO PRECIOUS. ACCIDENTS ARE TOO FREQUENT. THINK ABOUT WHAT SECURITY A $1000 ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY WILL MAKE YOU FEEL.

The policy is issued to both men and women between the ages of 16 and 70 for white and colored people. No red tape. No medical examination required.

The newspapers are full of stories of automobile and other accidents every day. You may be the next.

The Sentinel believed that it would be doing something worth while if it could find a way to protect its readers against such misfortunes at a small cost.

WILL "CONFERENCES" OR "MEETS" SETTLE?

By "A Country".

Mamma, Johnny goes in swimming while you are away. Call a conference.

The neighbor's chickens scratch up the flowers while Mamma is away. Organize the neighbors.

My mules have the colic every time Bill Flinders does the feeding. Call a conference.

My daughter refuses to come in at night until her mother gets back from her society or the club. Call a conference.

The banker wants me to pay my note when it is due, yet Bill Jones owes me more than I owe the banker. Call a conference in which Bill Jones and the banker must participate.

My neighbor bought a "Packard" and paid for it. I have not paid for the "little Ford" which I have, still my family, I know, feels just a bit humiliated when that "Packard" rolls out for the family drive. Call a conference.

The bank has charged up against my account every little check that I have given and now advises me, "no funds". Call a conference and let there be arranged some sort of an organization to meet just such conditions. Common sense and plain, ordinary business used to handle such things, but that is out of date today.

The doctor refused to come; the children will not study; the cook is late; my society meets at 3:30; I promised my pastor to make a visit to Mrs. Doe today; in fact there are so many things that I have scheduled that John and the children will have to get their dinner at the cafe. I will discuss these very things at the league meeting tomorrow and see if some plan cannot be worked out to help a "busy" (?) housekeeper out when matters get so mixed.

I am spending more than I make, yet nearly everybody else is doing the same thing. A conference will provoke lots of talk and help us find some way to take care of the excess or else make it "easy" for the other fellow to take care of it.

The chickens are crowing at my house and at my neighbors' houses before I get ready to get up. I want a neighborhood organization to handle this chicken crowing business.

Bill Smith bade his affianced good night Sunday night but he would not kiss her because it was not "kissing day."

Let's get the governors of the different states to set apart a day for a man to hug his wife, make love to his girl, a day for girl babies to be born and an hour for boy babies to arrive—system is what we need, don't make much difference about the brand of system, just so it is labeled "system". It is the name people are running after.

The time is past for one man to do much of his own thinking—he must depend on the think tank of an organization or a conference.

What's going on over there where all that noise is? Well, the men are conferring about how to make grass stay cut down after it is cut down and as to how to make six blades of grass grow under a shade tree; how to learn the Bible without reading it; how to scare the boll weevil without killing them; how to spend money and at the same time keep it; how to keep most all public work costing twice as much as the same thing for a private individual; how to still play favorites and not let it be called that; to felicitate over mortgaging the property of the counties and of the state with bonds when money cannot be got any other way. The farmers are conferring about country schools, better churches, better roads and lower taxes and how to keep everybody in the country and yet encourage them to move to the cities and the towns. The women are having a conference about spring hats, summer bonnets and "fall styles", bathing suits, how to manage husbands and how to make multiplied clubs, societies and missionary and other church activities fit in with the practical method which it is said that mothers and grandmothers used to employ in their domestic affairs.

The newspaper men are conferring about how to publish all the truth without denigrating their communities; how to please everybody and at the same time do no injury either positive or negative against their respective communities; how to keep people from thinking that an editor should ask every Dick, Tom and Harry about the policy of his paper; how to get everybody to realize that newspaper's space belongs to the owner and that he has the same rights with it that the other fellow has about wearing his own clothes; how to get everybody to think that every honest editor wants to make his paper a service to his community; how to get people believing that something can be done with nothing and just as many other foolish things.

Then there are the dentists; they are conferring how much a hog's tooth is superior to a man's tooth and that teeth are teeth whether in a dog's mouth, or chewing chicken bones, and that among the first things that was made after creation was completed was a dentist because Eve wore her teeth away biting Adam.

Then there are the veterinarians, the home economics people, the farm demonstrators, the fire and the life insurance people, the bankers, the doctors, the lawyers, the contractors, the bridge builders, the mechanics, the printers and machinists, the labor unions in general, and yes, the teachers and old maids, the last named class giving an extended dissertation on how to raise children and the mistakes that are being made with children—all these are conferring and still there are yet more conferences.

There has been no great interest shown in holding to the old ideals of home and what a home means in laying the foundations for good boys and girls and for noble, Christ-like men and women—such things as these are rather "slow". One John said to his Mary only recently, that these societies and conferences reminded him very much of poulticing a man's stomach who had eaten several raw sweet potatoes for the "tummy ache", or applying toilet water to the hand which was giving great pain because of a large splinter imbedded beneath the skin.

them how much we really love them and how much we want them back as they used to be; could look at them and say once more with pride and happiness, instead of shame and fear and heartache, "Our boys, our boys."

"The New Year is open before us and there is much to be done. And for you as head of the Legion there is much opportunity and many glorious possibilities. May God give you wisdom and strength and understanding, that you may guide aright those boys who are under you and help them to keep faith. I for one, although a very small part of America's womanhood, pledge to our boys my love and faith and sympathy, and I will do all within my power to help them hold high the torch, that they will not have fought for nothing, and that those who have paid the supreme sacrifice will not have died in vain."

"Perhaps you will think this letter strange, will not understand the motive which prompted me to write it—not censure, not blame, nor cold criticism, but love for the Legion, and all for which it stands, and the earnest desire to see realized those beautiful dreams that we dreamed only a few short years ago. I am not a fanatic, but just a plain American girl who loves her country with all the love of which she is capable and one who wants to pay at least her part of the debt."

Note by the Editor—The above is the product of the brain of Miss Rena Lloyd Humphreys of Grenada. It is a well written letter. It shows serious thought. It betrays her as one thinking above the ordinary things that alas concern too many. In this day of hurry and rush, it is as a rainbow athwart the skies to find one who sees above the fog and who refuses to "fall in" with the crowd just for the sake of "pushing things along."

We feel sure that this brilliant young woman did not intend to indict the soldiers of the World War. Rather she was expressing herself, perhaps not knowingly, about a spectacle or condition that confronts this whole country and in some measure the civilized world. Her letter can be construed as reflecting in some measure the view of many thoughtful, sober-minded men and women of today. There is a monkey-wrench, it would seem, in the social, political and economic machinery of the world.

The fact is that too much was expected, too much was promised, in the way of a reformed and more consecrated humanity as a result of the war. We were told by ministers and public speakers generally that "when the boys come home, they will come with a new spirit and a new vision," and that the churches must get ready for the change. We were almost told that we would very nearly see the first rays of the dawn of the millennium. The Sentinel said at the time that that was all an error. We said that if this war did not undermine the better things of life and shake the moral and spiritual life of the Nation and of the civilized world to its very foundations, it would be unlike any war that had ever before been waged. The aftermath has verified what we said.

Then there is another thing, and a very significant one, too, in connection with the view of the "boys" now and when they were in cantonments and across the seas. They have found out since they got back into civil life that while they were enlisted to save the honor and the life of our government, while they were offering their very lives every day for the Stars and the Stripes, that the great majority who remained at home were trying to get rich and thousands, yea perhaps millions, were profiteering and that equally as many were actually robbing the government in thousands of contracts made to furnish material for the prosecution of the war.

All this served to chill the better thing seeking dominance in the life of the "boys". And looking at the matter from one viewpoint, can they be blamed? But we would not be understood as saying that one viewpoint should be the means of fixing one's ideas. To consider a matter from only one angle will oftentimes steer us into the current that leads to the rocks and the rapids and which means destruction and ruin. These "boys" are men, they are real men. They are doing as well as their fathers and their mothers; whatever mistakes they are making can be finally traced back to what they failed to get in the sacred precincts of the home. The mandate which was thundered from the heavens in the centuries ago is still written in the skies where everybody can read, "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."

We would blame the "boys" but for very little. They but reflect what has been taught them. Perhaps we expect too much of them. We believe the boys of the present generation, when we consider the examples set them and the "rush" of their parents, are far ahead of what their parents were—their parents had better preceptors at home.

But maybe Miss Humphreys answered what she was seeking to discover when she used these words, "It was for us (the American women) you fought and suffered. What have we given in return? You gave us your trust and faith—the sweetest and most priceless gift a man ever gave a woman—and what have we done with it? Is it our fault that the standard has been so lowered and that the ideals for which you fought now seem to be so vague and dim and so far away?"

As has been the case for many generations, the women fix the moral and social standards. They have a responsibility today as never before. Finally, it will be generally conceded that the "boys" are doing better than the men.

SISSON MAKES BROAD PATRIOTIC SPEECH

to all of us. And may I say—it may be the last time I shall have the opportunity to pay this tribute to him—Uncle Joe Cannon is one of the very great men whom I have ever known. (Applause.) He is a great man. When the history of the Speakerships of this House is written, Uncle Joe Cannon is going to stand out in bold relief as one of the Mount Pelions in the range of Speakers. In fact, it has been my good fortune to serve under two unique Speakers, Uncle Joe and the inimitable Champ Clark. I do not know of two men who were so much alike and yet so totally different as Champ Clark and Uncle Joe Cannon. They were both, as we might say, diamonds in the rough. Their rugged, honest souls caused them to be loved and respected, not only by their colleagues here but by the people of the Nation. When I mention Uncle Joe, I can not refrain from mentioning another great and much beloved man on the Democratic side of the aisle. He was born in the same State with Uncle Joe, Uncle Joe left; he remained in the State of their birth—that of North Carolina. I refer, of course, to most-beloved Member of the House, Maj. Charles M. Steadman, the Confederate soldier, now a Member of the House. There is not a Member of the House on either side who does not love, admire, and respect him, nor is there one who would not with pleasure render him a service. (Applause.)

My friends, I said that the center aisle does not divide our friendship. It does not. Take the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Madden. I have differed with him greatly. He has made some speeches here that I wish he had not made; but I have associated with him not only since he has been chairman of the committee but in many ways before and I want to say for him now—the history of it is going to be written some day—this new reform, this new regime, has put upon him an extraordinary burden; that he has more than made good.

Now, I should like to mention the names of all of these I love so well, but I can not do it. I can not mention them all. I see them around me. If they should happen to come to my town, I would never forgive them if they did not come to see me. I see my friend Paige, of Massachusetts, who tucks cotton down in my country. If he should come to my town and not come to see me I would never forgive him in the world. I would haunt him all the days of his life. In serving on these committees, in dealing with the affairs of this great country, we learn to know each other very well. If I had not been on this Committee on Military Affairs, one of the choicest spirits in this House would not have come so completely into my soul. I could say good things about all these boys, but I want to tell you that I would never have known and been so intimately friendly with Dan Anthony as I am if I had not served on this committee. (Applause.) I hardly know exactly what term to use to tell you how good he is, but there is not enough shadow in Dan Anthony's soul to hide one sinister thought. (Applause.) If Dan Anthony were a Democrat, I would vote for him for President. (Laughter and applause.)

Gentlemen of the House, I hope you will pardon me for this expression of my regard for the House. So far as the financial end of the matter is concerned, I have no regret in leaving. I do, however, have great regret in severing the ties of friendship that now exist between myself and this body of magnificent and good men, the closest in the world. Those of you who feel this sincere friendship and who have served here 14 years, when the time comes to sever these relations it is going to be hard. That is why men love to hang around Washington after defeat, because they do not like to leave these Halls and leave the Members they love so well. So, my brethren, I want to take advantage of this opportunity to say that I love every one of you, because you are worthy of being loved. I respect every one of you, because you are the standard of the House of Representatives will always be as high as it is now; that whatever may be the mistakes made the country is not going to suffer as long as it has men of this type and men of this character looking after the interests of the Government of the United States here in this House. You have the Ark of the Covenant of our liberties—the Constitution. Keep it safe. I thank you, my friends, for your attention, and again beg pardon for taking up so much of your time. (Applause. Members rising.)

LAYMEN MAKE TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION

According to previous announcement there was a meeting of the laymen of three of the churches in Grenada last Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church and an organization formed which it is hoped will grow in numbers and in interest until it takes in Grenada County. There was about 20 present. Rev. W. E. Parr of the First Baptist church and Rev. Melville Johnson of the Methodist church were present. Mr. Cunningham, the pastor of the Presbyterian church was not present because of the fact that an appointment heretofore made called him away. Mr. C. C. White was named as president; A. M. Carothers, vice president; J. C. Wilson, secretary and O. F. Lawrence, treasurer. A committee consisting of the two pastors present (Prof. Rundle, Dr. Broadstreet and J. C. Wilson) was named to prepare a sort of by-laws or chart to work by.

Another meeting is to be had which it is hoped will be more largely attended, due notice of which will be given.

LAWRENCE YEAGER SEEKS ASSESSOR'S OFFICE

Mr. Lawrence N. Yeager asks that The Sentinel place his name formally before the voters of Grenada County as a candidate for the office of Tax Assessor.

Lawrence Yeager was reared in the Youngs community, district, being a son of Louis B. Yeager who was so long a member of the board of supervisors and who served the County for several terms most acceptably as Tax Assessor. Lawrence is not without experience in the discharge of the important duties of the office of Tax Assessor. He aided his father several times in making the assessments and in making out the tax rolls.

He is quick and alert about all matters and is a young man of far more than average capacity. There can be no question about his ability to properly assess the property of the County. Those who know him best say that he puts his heart and his talents into whatever he undertakes, hence it follows, his ability being conceded, that he will make a good and competent official, should he be chosen.

Mr. Yeager has never before been a candidate for office. He has devoted his talents and his energies to the farm and to the things of the farm. For the past two years, he has been operating a ginney at Holcomb, a place he is said to have filled to the satisfaction of the public and to the company which owns the gin.

Mr. Yeager is thirty years of age. He is married and has three children, hence it may be truthfully said that he has passed any experimental age and that he is thoroughly and properly identified with the highest and best interests of the County.

He states that he expects to see every voter possible in the County. The Sentinel commends Mr. Yeager's candidacy to the thoughtful consideration of Grenada County voters.

WARNER V. HORTON ANNOUNCES FOR SUPERVISOR

Mr. Warner V. Horton of district 3 authorizes The Sentinel to say that he is a candidate for the office of supervisor from district 3.

Mr. Horton was reared within a very few miles of where he now resides and in district 3. He comes of one of the most worthy and most substantial families of Grenada County, and is maintaining the standards of integrity, honor, faithfulness and adherence to what he believes to be right which has characterized his family. He is regarded as one of the most substantial citizens of the County. He has succeeded well in farming, and is one of those who has made few pretensions towards those things about which there is more or less glamour and display. He has lived within his income and has succeeded in laying aside a competency for a rainy day. It would therefore seem that he possesses the business elements so often spoken of as one of the essentials to a proper discharge of the duties of the office of supervisor.

Mr. Horton has theretofore served two successive terms as supervisor from his district, hence is fortified by experience and by observation to meet the duties which he seeks to perform. It is fair to assume that the passing of the years have increased his knowledge of men and of conditions and that, should he be elected, he will make a better officer than he did before. He is an outspoken character and is usually found on one side or the other of a proposition, a thing always to be admired. The matter of taking a position, of being frank and outspoken is an obligation that, for business reasons or as a sort of moral cowardice, too many men shrink.

The Sentinel feels sure that the voters of district 3 will give Mr. Horton's candidacy every consideration.

GRENADA POSTAL CLERKS LEAD THE STATE

There was an examination held a few days ago to test the quickness and the accuracy of the Mississippi postal clerks. Three of the Grenada clerks were in the test. They lead the State. Their average was over 99%. Messrs. Avert McElwath, E. R. Proudfit and Bingham were in the test. Mr. McElwath led with Mr. Proudfit a close second. Mr. Bingham also made a most creditable record.

JURY LIST THROWN OUT LAUDERDALE COUNTY

Alleged Fraud of Supervisors and That Names Were in Box That Had Been There Within Two Years.

District and County and prosecuting attorneys at circuit court in Lauderdale County asked, that jury list placed in box by supervisors be thrown out, and among other allegations was that many names were in boxes that had been in before within two years. The circuit judge sustained the motion and new jury was summoned. The following declaration by the prosecuting attorneys may be of service to supervisors elsewhere. "STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, County of Lauderdale, In Circuit Court, February term, 1923.

"Comes the state of Mississippi, by the district attorney and county prosecuting attorney of Lauderdale County, and moves the court to quash the jury service at the present term of court, and also to quash the alleged jury box from which said jurors' names were drawn for the reason that the said jury box is an illegal one, and that the names of said jurors were not procured and placed in said box as is required by law, but were placed there through fraud; that the board of supervisors of Lauderdale County in attempting to fill said illegal jury box wholly disregarded the provisions of the statute in that over 900 names were placed in said jury box without an order from the judge of this district so to do; that the said supervisors did not take the said jurors as newly as they conveniently could from the several supervisors' districts in proportion to the number of qualified persons in each, that the said supervisors did not exclude from the said illegal jury box all jurors who had served on a regular panel within two years; that there was not a deficiency of jurors and that said supervisors should have excused from the said jury box all who had served on the regular panel within the past two years. But on the other hand the supervisors knowingly, intentionally, illegally and fraudulently placed in the said jury box in as many as three beats of said county 50 per cent or more names of jurors who have served as jurors every year for the past several years, consequently, that this practice on the part of the board of supervisors of Lauderdale County has existed for several years and is illegal and fraudulent, and strikes down every safeguard the statute throws around the selection of jurors in a fair and impartial way. Therefore, the State of Mississippi moves to quash said panel and also said illegal jury box.

"Respectfully submitted, F. K. ETHRIDGE, C. P. A. M. V. B. MILLER, D. A."

TO ENUMERATE SCHOOL CHILDREN

Under Chapter 197, Laws of Mississippi of 1922, it is made the duty of the school heads or principals in the counties and in the towns to enumerate the educable children. The law forbids that a pay certificate shall be issued to any "principal white teacher" for the last month of the term until he shall have complied with the law.

In the towns, the list is to be submitted to the trustees, after the enumeration is made, and the trustees are required to make oath as to its correctness, and the law also requires that the same shall be filed with the county superintendent of education on or before March 1. If the county superintendent shall fail to require the school principal to make the enumeration and have it filed on the date named, the supervisors, on being notified, are required to deduct $100. from the salary of the said superintendent of education.

The Sentinel has been requested to state that the enumeration in Grenada will begin probably this week-end, and Prof. Rundle earnestly asks the aid and prompt cooperation of the people of the town. It is a highly important matter to see that every child from 5 years old up to 21 years is enumerated for the reason that the distribution of funds by the State Department of Education is made to each county and to each separate school district on the basis of the number of educable children.

The matter is likewise of equal importance to the families and the people of the schools in the country. Every safe guard seems to have been thrown around the law so as prevent a double enumeration, or to prevent those from listing children who are without authority to do so.

HAVE YOU GOT TICKET NUMBER 18,663?

The holder of ticket No. 18,663 in the $300 Gold Distribution that was to be awarded as a Christmas Gift is entitled to receive $50. in gold. The ticket came from Doak Hardware Co., and if you have it, you will receive $50. in gold when you present ticket to L. J. Doak.

NATIONAL COMMANDER TO VISIT GRENADA

Alvin M. Owsley, of Texas, National Commander American Legion to Spend Several Hours in Grenada on Thursday, April 5. Local Post Making Preparations for His Entertainment.

On Thursday afternoon, April 5, Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of The American Legion will spend four hours in Grenada and at that time will be the guest of the members of Jim Trimble Post No. 35. Mr. Owsley will arrive at 12:50 on train number 24 from Jackson and will be accompanied by Kenneth G. Price of McComb, head of the Department of Mississippi, The American Legion. It is expected also that most of the members of the State Executive Committee will accompany the party to Grenada.

The local post is making preparations to give Mr. Owsley and those who are with him a rousing reception for the few hours they are in the city. All the business houses will be asked to close from one o'clock until the time the visitors will leave, on train number 4 that afternoon. It is also planned to serve dinner to the visitors and all members of the American Legion who are here for the occasion as well as members of the local post and the ladies of the town are expected to join in making it one of the best spreads ever given the boys here.

After dinner, Mr. Owsley and others will make addresses at the Grenada Opera House which the public is cordially invited and urged to attend. The speeches will be of general interest to all and will, of course, be short and to the point on account of the limited time.

The national commander is visiting only three cities in this state, Vicksburg, Jackson and Grenada, and all citizens of the town should show their appreciation of the honor conferred by turning out en masse to hear what he has to say.

Alvin M. Owsley, of Texas, National Commander American Legion to Spend Several Hours in Grenada on Thursday, April 5. Local Post Making Preparations for His Entertainment.

B. L. HARRIS, SR., ASKS ANOTHER TERM AS JUSTICE OF THE PEACE.

Mr. B. L. Harris, Sr., has yielded to the wishes of many of neighbors and friends and again submits his name to the voters of district 5 for the office of Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Harris has served as Justice of the Peace for nearly twenty years, and during all that time there has been no complaint about any bias or prejudice shown in any official act. There has never been any one to say that he used his office to get court fees or to stir up neighborhood law-suits or broils. Truly may it be said of him that he has been a peace officer, a peace justice. It has been his aim to keep down law-suits rather than to encourage them. This is just what the public needs in a Justice of the Peace.

Mr. Harris has never at any time winked at the law-breaker. The one who thought that B. L. Harris, either as a private citizen or an officer would help him get by with a deliberate infraction of the law, has misjudged the man. He stands for a law-enforcement and for the things of society that tend to stabilize communities and to give men confidence in the courts and in the better things of life.

Mr. Harris is a man of good judgment. He is a clear thinker. He has the judicial temperament so needed in a Justice of the Peace. He has reached that age when the best in men asserts itself, hence it may be safely said that he will do his best, should he again be re-elected to make the people of district 5 a better officer than ever before.

The Sentinel bespeaks for his candidacy the careful consideration of the voters of that district.

NO CHICKENS

In speaking of the ultra-modern young woman it is no longer up-to-date to use the term "flapper". They are now called "Easter eggs", because they are hand-painted on the outside, and hand-baked on the inside—Reformed Church Messenger.
